Job functions

Intro letters are hard to write when you're multi-faceted, and you're looking to be the missing piece of a puzzle.

I currently do a variety of tasks in a Mycology Laboratory. Managing culture samples, working in a flow hood, to cold calling clients when I notice orders that may need more attention. My main focus is customer service, and company function. I help write processes where they need to be written, I help expand dreams, supporting the office and following a role given are what I thrive with. I hold a cosmetology license and practiced for many years. I have passion and am able to function in any setting from a business room, to clean room, operate social media, and even help expand web content. I am also part of social groups, seasonal acting, and networking circles. I'm currently part of a team for software development, working on multiple projects connected with NASA, and lead the communication with all clients that deserve special consideration. I communicate my needs well, I'm eager to learn, fast to achieve success, and trained to impress. My schedule is a little weird if you can work with private school, Jewish Holidays, and adaptability, I may be the unicorn your company has been in search of.
